PINK INTERIORS: BRING OUT THE GIRL!

Naturally, one would expect to see pink in February. However, in 2016 you're going to glimpse this decidedly feminine color year round - pink has been anointed one of the Pantone Color Institute's top picks for interior design this year. We're already seeing pink in a range of hues - from delicate and tender or sassy and bright - show up in more permanent finishes such as Artistic Tile's Percussion Pink Jazz glass tile, Wilsonart's Anatolia Quartz countertops, Graham & Brown Desire Pink Damask wall coverings, and Niche Modern's hand-blown Rose glass pendant lights.

In fact, pink is now being considered a new neutral - acceptable for primary use in the living room, kitchen, bedroom and, of course, the bath. You'll find that pink can be easily combined with Benjamin Moore's color of the year, Simply White, and with the tried and true warm brown tones or with anything from the gray palette that has swept the nation.

Not ready to commit? Still thinking about your grandmother's circa 1950 pink bath? Try introducing sophisticated pink pillows, a soft throw, or even, a charming pastel pink fluted table lamp. There are many ways to gently introduce pink to your decor - a little at a time. Check out the article by Melina Divani, How to Decorate With Blush Pink for more ideas or contact Gigi at DiGiacomo Homes for a design consult. She'll help find the pink that speaks to you. Pink can draw out the girl in all of us and never fails to satisfy!
