INTERIOR DESIGN: AUTUMN BRINGS WARMER COLORS

Fall is ushering in warm earth tones and they're here to stay if the Sherwin Williams (SW) color forecast is correct. SW provided a sneak peek at its 2019 Color of the Year: Cavern Clay, SW 7701 (below).

Does this mean that you have to give up on gray and white? Certainly not. This is, after all, a timeless combination. But look what happens to the crisp duo when warmer colors are introduced (above).

We love the combination of Origami White (SW 7636) and Mothwing (SW 9174) with the warmer hues of Baked Cookie (SW 9098), Dark Clove (SW 9183) and Caramelized (SW 9186). Throw in some blue, like Distance (SW 6243), to liven things up. The overall effect is a rich color palette with more depth.

We'll be using a variation of the SW colors above in a new whole house remodel. Cabinetry will be off-white throughout but paired with accents of warm chocolate, earthen clay, and smoky blue using fabrics, wallpaper and tile. We'll be sure to share the final results in an upcoming e-newsletter! In the meantime, contact us if you're ready to warm up your home's color palette!
